Japan Fliers Bomb Nanking Putting Foreigners In Danger

Forty Natives Killed; British and French Warships Refuse to Move

U.S. Embassy Staff Goes Up Yangtze

SHANGHAI (AP)—Japanese aircraft bombed Nanking for three hours Monday morning, killing 40 civilians and demolishing as many homes, but British, United States and French naval commanders refused a Japanese demand that they move their warships up the Yangtze and out of the range of fire.

The United States embassy staff fled from Nanking, however, Ambassador Nelson Johnson and his aides boarding the patrol boat Luzon, which sailed for Wuhu, 30 miles upstream from Nanking.

British and French warships would remain, admirals representing the two countries asserted, so long as the British and French embassies and their citizens remain in the Chinese capital.

Furthermore, the British and French warships would be held strictly responsible for any loss of life or damage to property of either nation.

British officials declared simply: "We are remaining at Nanking for the time being."
They informed the Japanese admiral the noon Tuesday ultimatum did not give the British sufficient time to evacuate or to warn their nationals; and added, pointedly, that maps had been supplied the Japanese showing the location of the British embassy and there was, therefore, no need for them to leave Nanking.

Air Battles Over Shanghai

SHANGHAI (AP)—Chinese fliers launched new night air raids Monday night, swooping in death-defying dives over the Japanese military airfield in the Yangtzepoo sector.

Japanese anti-aircraft batteries on the fringe of the International Settlement sprayed shrapnel fragments over a wide area, but apparently failed to bring down any of the Chinese planes.

Bob Genge Dead

BOB GENGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bob Genge, former Victoria hockey player when the game was at its height of popularity there some years ago, died at his home here today. He was 47.

Genge learned his hockey in Port Arthur, Ont., and played on the prairies before turning professional. Then he came west, in 1913 joined Lester Patrick's Victoria team, and for several years was one of the strongest defence players in the circuit.

He moved to Vancouver recently.

Italy Soon May Join Anti-pirate Patrol

ROME (AP)—A tri-partite anti-piracy naval patrol with Italy assuming full parity and authority over Mediterranean sea lanes with Great Britain and France was predicted in well-informed Fascist circles tonight.

These informants said the way had been paved for straightening out the arrangements drafted by the nine powers at Nyon—providing for Italy only a minor part in the patrol and which Italy rejected.

"Snake Bite" Is Traced to Pipe

VANCOUVER (CP)—An excited voice over the telephone told police: "I've just been bitten by a large snake."

Patrolmen found their informant, whose name was withheld, had been bitten by a piece of tin pipe.

Beside the roadway they discovered a length of piping. An upturned jagged end, that looked like a snake's head in the long grass, had nicked the man's ankle.

U.S. PRESIDENT INVITED HERE

City Seeks Visit From Roosevelt on Proposed Tour of Northwest U.S.

Efforts to secure a visit from President Roosevelt during his tour of the northwest United States in the near future were made by the city on Saturday as a telegram went forward from Mayor Andrew McGavin to Hon. Bernard Rinfret, Secretary of State at Ottawa.

The telegram read as follows:

"I wish to respectfully request that you be so kind as to tender through the proper channels, on behalf of the Victoria City Council, to His Excellency the President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, kindly greetings and good wishes from this capital city of the province of British Columbia, and a sincere and very cordial invitation to honor Victoria with a visit during the trip proposed to be made by His Excellency in the near future, to the northwest section of the United States."

The telegram was signed by Mayor McGavin.

Fail to Reach Aklavik

Sir Hubert Wilkins (wearing coat) was seated in the cockpit of his big flying boat when the above picture was taken. Beside him was Air Commodore Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, who has served as chief pilot on the party's Arctic search for the six lost Russian fliers. Beside Hollick-Kenyon was Co-pilot Al Cheeseman, and in the background Ray Booth (left), radio operator, and Gerald Brown, mechanic.

Redistribution Of Education Tax Is Urged On Trustees

Importance of Occupational Training Stressed as B.C. Heads Gather

Hope for a redistribution of education costs in British Columbia and the suggestion of plans to promote occupational training in provincial high schools was voiced by speakers at the opening of the 33rd annual convention of the B.C. School Trustees' Association in the Empress Hotel this morning.

Official welcomes were tendered by Premier Pattullo on behalf of the province; by Mayor Andrew McGavin for the city; by W. C. Moresby, K.C., for the Victoria School Board, and by Mrs. Paul Smith, M.P.P., for the Minister of Education.

Mrs. Edward Mahon, Vancouver, president, is presiding over all sessions. The question of redistributing school costs was introduced by Mayor McGavin, who spoke of the benefits which accrue from such round-table discussions as were to be held. While

Mock Air Raids Stir Berliners

Population Driven Into Cellars as Manoeuvres Carried Out

BERLIN (AP)—Air raid manoeuvres threw Berlin into an uproar today—the population was driven into cellars, the propaganda ministry was burned "theoretically to a cinder," and the Kaiserhof Hotel, opposite the Foreign Office, was "destroyed."

Warning sirens sounded at 8.19 a.m., and crowds en route to work jammed into the cellars.

Bombers droned overhead 20 minutes later and were met by fire from anti-aircraft batteries on roofs of high buildings.

"A direct 'hit' was scored on Air Minister Hermann Goerring's

B.C. School Trustees Hear Proposal For December Poll

The Union of British Columbia Municipalities' resolution to hold municipal elections in early December rather than later in the winter during January, was referred to the resolutions committee of the B.C. School Trustees' Association convention this morning.

The municipalities' resolution, which advocated advancing the date because of adverse weather in January, was read to the convention by George A. Grant, Vancouver, secretary.

Committees to act during the convention were named at the close of this morning's session by Mrs. Edward Mahon, Vancouver, president. The following were appointed: Credentials committee, chairman Mrs. J. P. Leeming, Duncan; W. J. Sparring, Maple Ridge and Kenneth Ferguson, Victoria; resolutions committee, chairman J. W. Berry, Langley; J. P. Carr Matsqui, and Mrs. C. W. Jack, Mission; finance committee, chairman D. B. Brankin, Surrey; by-laws committee, chairman D. Chapman, Kelowna, and B. A. Edwards, Kamloops.

Reports of branch associations were presented this morning by Captain H. P. Coombs, Coldstream, for the Okanagan Valley Branch, and Mrs. C. W. Jack, Mission, for the Fraser Valley Branch.

George Jay, a member of the City School Board for 30 years and chairman for 27 years, was introduced to the convention this morning as a life member. Mr. Jay was accorded an enthusiastic round of applause.

Cholera Spreads In Shanghai Area

SHANGHAI (AP)—Cholera in the foreign areas here, already at epidemic proportions, spread alarmingly Monday. Health officials, battling against spread of the dread disease from the filth of jammed Chinese refugee camps, reported 1,015 known cases and 120 deaths. There have been 19 cases among foreign residents and nine deaths.

Three Killed In Prison Fight

Guard and Two Convicts Slain at Folsom, Cal.; Warden Among Wounded

FOLSOM, Calif. (AP)—A Folsom state prison guard and two convicts were dead today and eight others, including Warden Clarence Larkin, were suffering from wounds as results of a brief, deadly and unsuccessful attempt at a prison break.

Warden Larkin lay in the prison hospital with 12 stab wounds in his body. Two guards and five convicts were wounded in the melee of flashing knives and swinging clubs that climaxed the warden's usual Sunday interview with Folsom inmates. One of the convicts, Ed Davis, reputed instigator of the break, was believed near death.

Twenty minutes of furious fighting which began when seven long-term inmates stepped out of line and rushed Warden Larkin in the office of the captain of the guard, ended with all the convicts badly beaten and prostrate.

Capt. W. J. Ryan and Guard James Kerns had serious knife wounds.

NEW YORK (CP)—A wall of Arctic silence today cloaked the whereabouts of Sir Hubert Wilkins and the party he headed in the flying boat hunt for the six lost Russian airmen, but no fear for their safety was held at search quarters in the Explorers' Club here.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, president of the club, said nothing had been heard of the Wilkins plane since shortly before 4 Sunday afternoon, Pacific Standard Time, while the searchers were attempting to reach Aklavik, N.W.T., at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, under adverse conditions.

While Stefansson said he believed Sir Hubert's pilot had brought the plane down on a small lake, he started organizing "emergency equipment" that could be called on quickly for assistance.

On completion of his fifth unsuccessful search for Sigismund Levanefsky and the five companions who became lost in the Arctic stillness August 13 while attempting a flight from Russia to Alaska and the U.S., the Wilkins plane landed on a lake near Aklavik at 7.50 Sunday morning.

The Soviet embassy at Washington and Stefansson received word from the Canadian radio

BRITAIN OFFERS WIDER TRADE

GENEVA (CP-Havas)—Great Britain is ready to contribute to world economic betterment by opening discussions with all governments looking toward a modification of preferential customs duties in British colonial territories, Foreign Secretary Eden told the League of Nations Assembly today.

He also stated that a most favoured nation agreement between Great Britain and the United States "would be of capital interest to the entire world."

Making satisfactory note of a recent improvement in economic conditions, Eden declared Great Britain's protectionist policy had been unjustly criticized. An important part of the British market

British Columbia's Biggest Bridge Opens November 15

This panoramic view of the Pattullo Bridge across the Fraser River at New Westminster was taken last week just as the final steel links were joined above the centre of the river. The government now has in hand arrangements for an opening ceremony on November 15. Built for the government by the Dominion Bridge Company, the Pattullo span, named after the Premier, is by far the largest ever built in this province. It compares favorably with the big modern bridges erected in different parts of the continent.

The bridge is of steel and concrete construction. The main structure is 3,980 feet long, approximately three-quarters of a mile. With 2,800 feet of approaches on the north bank and 1,120 feet on the south bank the overall length is 7,800 feet, nearly a mile and one-half.

With a 40-foot roadway, four traffic lanes and a six-foot sidewalk on the west side, the bridge is strong enough to handle a string of 20-ton trucks four abreast.

The central span, clearly shown in the photograph, is a tied arch. The continuous span is 450 feet from pier to pier, giving a 438-foot horizontal clearance and 146 feet vertical at high water. The total height from the top of the arch to high water is 247 feet.

Some idea of the gigantic nature of the structure can be gained from the following figures on the materials used on the job: Structural steel, 5,300 tons; reinforcing steel, 1,600 tons; concrete, 62,000 cubic yards; earth excavations, 180,000 cubic yards; cement, 100,000 barrels; timber, 2,000,000 board feet.

JAPAN FLIERS BOMB NANKING, PUTTING FOREIGNERS IN DANGER

The Japanese had demanded withdrawal of foreigners so the city could be bombed with danger
only to Chinese.

The Japanese planes, in continuous relays of six to a squadron, subjected Nanking to its worst bombardment since hostilities began. Flying to the centre of the city, they directed their bombs
at the Nanking government headquarters.

It was the third air raid on the seat of the Chinese government in two days, the 12th bombardment of Nanking since the Japanese advance against Shanghai was slowed by Chinese resistance.

Chinese used a fleet of fast pursuit planes to harry the heavy Japanese bombers and save the city of more than 1,000,000 from destruction the Japanese command is believed to have determined on.

BEFORE TIME SET

In a virtual ultimatum to all foreign residents of Nanking, Japan had warned them to get out of the city by noon Tuesday or face the danger of death from aerial bombardment. But 24 hours before the warning period ended the Japanese launched their attack, endangering the lives of many high foreign dignities.

The British authorities adopted
a firm attitude toward the Japanese warning and instructed British authorities in Shanghai to inform the Japanese the British embassy would remain in Nanking.

Americans were understood to be evacuating up river aboard a British steamer.

RUSSIANS REMAIN

The Soviet embassy indicated it would remain at the capital
despite the Japanese warning.

Two squadrons of Japanese raiders—Japanese here claimed
there were 40 planes—roared over the city, widely deployed, and launched their attack simultaneously on widely distant sectors.

Seven distinct areas were known to have been hit, including the government airfield. The damage, however, was believed slight.

Chinese fighting planes which took to the air were reported to have brought down three Japanese bombers. Two of them were said to have been shot down east of the city, where a lengthy battle was fought.

Japanese claimed there were only seven Chinese planes opposing them and four of these were shot down.

ELEVEN MILES

Japanese officials declared
Japan would not be responsible for any foreign lives lost when her air fleet bombs Nanking as the "base of Chinese resistance to Japan." It was their intention to wipe the Chinese capital "off
the map."

Commanders of foreign warships were told by Vice-Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commanding
the combined Japanese fleet at Shanghai, to move "at least 11 miles upstream" from their anchorage off Nanking's bund in the Yangtze River.

Japanese claimed to have shot down 32 Chinese planes Sunday
and destroyed important military objectives; foreign reports did not bear out these claims and Chinese labeled them "pure fabrication."

Japanese officers said 26 planes
were shot down in the morning attack and six more in the afternoon raid and termed the victory
"the greatest single feat in the history of aerial combat."

Reliable foreign observers in Nanking said the claims were not true; that the raid was aimed primarily at the airbase and arsenal and was ineffective in the main.

FLAGS FLOWN

LONDON (CP)—Large Union
Jacks fly over the British Embassy in Nanking to warn off Japanese air raiders. The staff resident in the embassy totals around 20. The British colony in Nanking numbers 300. It is assumed many of them are taking shelter in the series of dugouts which the Chinese have prepared.

LEAGUE DISCUSSION

GENEVA (CP-Havas)—British Foreign Secretary Eden, addressing the League of Nations Assembly, dealt with the Sino-Japanese hostilities, saying:

"The Chinese, delegate, in a speech which deeply moved the whole Assembly, gave us details of the appalling consequences of the warfare, and more particularly the aerial hostilities, in the Far East—details which must have shocked every one of us."

"He has in no respect exaggerated the horror felt by us at home at this appalling loss of life."

"Can anyone doubt that if
co-operation had been pursued,
benefits must have accrued
where now there is untold suffering among millions—to say nothing of the blow to trade and prosperity throughout the Far East?"

"In her address, Mrs. Mahon
spoke of conferences which the
executive had had during the year
with parent-teacher bodies. She
dealt with the report on ac-

Correspondent Is Held As Spy

Associated Press Man, Released, Tells of Experiences Behind Japanese Lines

By HALDRE HAMSON

Associated Press Foreign Staff

With the Japanese Army Below Peiping (AP)—Arrest as a spy behind the Japanese lines
some 40 miles south of Peiping Monday brought to an end my long bicycle tour of the battlefields, of the Japanese army's great offensive along the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Blindfolded, I was brought back in an ambulance filled with Japanese wounded to Huangstun, railway point 10 miles from Peiping, where I was subjected to three hours of intensive questioning.

Finally I was released. My treatment by the Japanese military throughout was most courteous.

SAW MANY DEAD

On my ambulance ride to the rear I passed truck after truck loaded with Japanese dead. They could be identified by the odor
and the remarks by my wounded
Japanese companions.

Before my arrest I had bicycled southeast from the railway over 24 miles of muddy roads to reach Huanhsien, which fell before the first rush of the Japanese army's great drive. This lies just below the Yungting River, some 30 miles from Peiping.

Although Japanese headquarters announced capture of Kuanhsien last Wednesday morning, the walled city was held two days longer by a Chinese regiment belonging to the 91st Army and commanded by a Col. Wang.

Two thousand survivors of that regiment retired from Kuanhsien Friday.

GATE COLLAPSED

The heavily bombed gate tower
of the city was shattered and collapsed. More than 20 Chinese soldiers were buried.

Approaching Kuanhsien, I saw
more than 500 empty shell cases
left from the Japanese bombardment of the town.

I found the Japanese were smashing open all closed doors
and threatening to shoot townspeople who did not wear arm-
bands welcoming the conquerors.
I was told two frightened Chinese had been shot in the back while attempting to flee.

Peasants encountered on the road told men there had been several executions in the village,
where the Japanese tried to impress coolies for labor. The Chinese, frightened and unable to understand orders in the Japanese tongue, balked. Executions followed.

Forty-six were reported killed
in this manner at the town of Hsiyuan. I saw two groups of corpses of Chinese farmers with their hands tied behind their backs.

REISTRIBUTION OF EDU-CATION TAX IS URGED ON TRUSTEES

having no desire to introduce any controversial subject, Mayor Mc-Gavin said he would like to see some redistribution on education costs. He noted one resolution on the agenda dealt with the matter of taxes for education and he hoped the discussion on this question would lead to some productive thought for provincial authorities.

Mrs. Paul Smith spoke of her pleasure at once again attending a convention.

FREE EDUCATION

In reference to the question of school tax redistribution she noted that in other provinces free education was available to young people up to 21 years of age.

She referred to the need for occupational training for the 90 per cent of pupils who did not continue on into university.

This opportunity had not been available and today industry demanded some training. She felt this was the big problem facing school trustees of today.

While there were many difficulties confronting such a plan,
she was sure they could be overcome.

"I am delighted to be here this morning in the presence of this intelligent-looking body of people," the Premier said.

"You men and women are engaged in one of the most difficult tasks there is today—that of educating the youth of our country.
You are working in a revolutionary period and you must realize there must be changes. I know of no greater use to which you could devote your time than to the work which you are doing."

Mr. Moresby, after welcoming the trustees, sketched the plans of the local trustees for the entertainment of the delegates.

In her address, Mrs. Mahon
spoke of conferences which the
executive had had during the year
with parent-teacher bodies. She
dealt with the report on ac-

crediting in senior high schools.
The principal of consolidation of school areas promoted efficiency,
Mrs. Mahon said, and she thought such consolidation might ad-visedly be adopted by municipal councils. She referred particularly to the success of consolidation in North Saanich.

In closing she praised the cooperation of George A. Grant, secretary, treasurer, and other
executive members.

The financial statement and report of the executive was presented by George Grant, Vancouver.

BRINGS GREETINGS

Greetings from the B.C. Teachers' Federation were extended by J. N. Burnett, Vancouver, president.

He attributed the success of the British Columbia education system to the co-operation that existed between trustees and teachers. He paid warm tribute to the devotion of trustees to education.

Dealing with the new provincial curriculum, Mr. Burnett said teachers of the province were staunchly behind this evolutionary move. They realized there would have to be changes, but nevertheless they were behind the new principle.

Dr. W. G. Black, Vancouver,
president of the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, also spoke of the evolutionary advance in the curriculum, which he described as being "rich in specific accomplishments."

"COURAGEOUS" ATTITUDE

The British press saw aid to Britain's cause in Mr. Hull's "courageous speech" made Sunday in an international broadcast
sponsored by the National Peace Conference.

Mr. Hull declared that, though the United States is determined neither to thrust herself nor to be drawn into armed conflict between other nations, "this policy must be supplemented."

"A policy of complete isolation
from the outside world in its ultimate effects would be as ineffective as the opposite extreme,"
he said.

Some sections of the press saw double significance in the speech,
since it followed closely President
Roosevelt's criticism of dictators.

EDEN'S APPEAL

GENEVA (CP-Havas)—Rt.
Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, addressing the League of Nations Assembly today, spoke of the international political situation. He made an indirect appeal to Italy to join in the Mediterranean anti-pirate
patrol by stressing that the Nyon powers did not want to eliminate any Mediterranean states from their collective moves.

INSURGENT CHARGE

SALAMANCA, Spain (AP)—
Insurgent authorities on Sunday
charged the Spanish government with trying "to sink British ships
by any possible means" in order to provoke an international conflict.

An official note on "Red piracy," making these charges, declared the Valencia government was anxious to "drag the world into the horrors of the confagration" because it would help its cause.

Loeb was best known to the

Eden Says Non-intervention Plan Has Prevented War Spread

GENEVA (CP-Havas)—"We
have passed through a year of feverish anxiety, but the conflict
has not spread beyond the Spanish border," said Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, referring to the conflict
on the Iberian Peninsula today in the course of an address to the League of Nations Assembly.

"This is of the utmost importance to us. It is useless to deny that violations of the non-intervention system occurred. However, if non-intervention were scrapped, Europe would march along a still more dangerous path."

He stressed that London had backed all attempts to localize the civil strife in Spain.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish
Frontier (AP)—Insurgents driving toward the government's last northwest stronghold at Gijon broke through Asturian defence lines today, an insurgent community reported, and captured the village of Los Callejos.

Waves of counter-attacking Navarrese drove back the Asturian
defenders, who started the battle
with an infantry drive in the Sella River sector, 30 miles southeast of Gijon.

The advance brought Gen.
Franco's forces a step nearer Oviedo, where insurgent officers predicted the 14-month siege of an insurgent garrison would be lifted within two weeks and that Gijon would fall soon thereafter.

Other injured convicts were

ket remained largely open, aiding world economic recovery and proving Britain's policy was elastic, he said.

Mr. Eden expressed regret that certain countries in a "disadvantageous colonial position" had not collaborated with the League's raw materials commission.

The raw materials problem was not essentially a colonial problem,
since colonial regions furnished barely 3 per cent of the world's raw material supplies, he stated.

"Great Britain is ready to cooperate in moves designed to improve trade exchanges, but efforts in the direction will only prove effective if the countries laboring under difficulties are ready to modify their policies with a view toward re-establishing normal commercial relations
and renewing confidence."

He declared the United States,
second largest import market of the world, had adopted a vigorous customs-lowering policy.

Burbank "Lifetime" Range

If you didn't see the new Burbank "Lifetime" Range at the Exhibition... come to our store and see it. The "Lifetime" is so entirely different that you are going to be tremendously interested in seeing it. It is the only range that has ever been designed with double swing oven doors. In addition it has a sliding oven operated on Timken bearings to give easy access to the food. It is a wonderful baking oven, too, because five of the six sides are fully exposed to heat circulation. Notice in the illustration above the new cabinet base. No sweeping under base and cook can stand close without knocking feet. The new Burbank "Lifetime" Range has many other exclusive features. Careful baking tests prove it will bake on one-third to one-half less fuel than any other coal or wood range.

Election If Not Enough Pledges

Aberhart to Go to Polls If Result of Alberta Canvass
Not Convincing

EDMONTON (CP)—If Albertans in sufficient numbers fail to sign "blue pledges" promising to support the Social Credit government, it may be "compulsory" to call an election, Premier Aberhart asserted Sunday night before a crowd of 1,100 that filled the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference hall.

The Premier said the provincial government did not want "nationalization of banks and loan councils to control credit, but state issue of credit," and challenged "the banks or the federal government to show sanction or authority for the present method of monetizing our credit."

Declaring political opponents contended "only 30 per cent are favorable to the present government and that 70 per cent are for an immediate cessation of our attempts to deliver the people," Mr.
Aberhart added:

"The only way this can be settled is by turning in the blue pledges or, if you prefer it and will not sign the pledges, it might be compulsory to have an election.
You understand there is no need

tions at the gate showed today.

of an election. But we must know what you think."

PLEDGES RECEIVED
During the last week 31,376
signed pledges had been received, Premier Aberhart announced. He did not state the total that had been signed so far.

The only previous announcement in connection with signing
of the pledges being circulated throughout Alberta was made September 5, when Provincial Secretary E. C. Manning reported 30,750 signed pledges had been received the previous week.
"The fight is really between the financiers and the common people," the Premier declared.

"We are not disputing the constitution nor begging to have it changed to suit our philosophy."

The Premier said the Gospel of Mark might be called the "gospel
of Social Credit—live and let live

Co-operation For Peace Is Plea

Five Hurt In Street Accidents

VANCOUVER (CP)—Five people received minor injuries in traffic accidents over the weekend.

Edward Blaney, knocked down
by an automobile, was the only one kept in hospital. He was reported suffering from a leg injury.

Egilec Whitehead was struck by an auto while on his bicycle; Patricia Marriott was knocked down by a motorcycle; Howard Bryson was hit by an automobile,
and Mary Griffiths was injured
in an automobile collision.

All were taken to hospitals for treatment, but later released.

NO LIQUOR TRAILER

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—The
state tax commission put its foot down today on the request for a license to operate a liquor store in a trailer. "Poor success may require a change to another town," the applicant wrote.
Commissioner J. P. Derham ruled the license, if given, would confine operation to one point.

Leaders of Eight Countries Urge End of Trade Barriers in Broadcast

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister King stated Sunday afternoon that "in this stormy and transitional period of human affairs fear has largely supplanted
faith in the conduct of nations and their ultimate civilization is at stake."

It was plain, therefore, he said,
that "governments and individuals alike must... pursue the arts of co-operation and conciliation in every possible field of affairs."

The Canadian Prime Minister joined with leaders of seven other nations in an international symposium on world economic co-operation sponsored by the National Peace Conference. They pledged themselves to strive for peace through economic co-operation.

Premier King spoke on a broadcast with Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State;
Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, who spoke from Geneva; Prime Minister Camille Chautemps of France;
Premier Van Zeeland of Belgium; Chancellor von Schuschnigg of Austria; President Alfonso Lopez
of Colombia and Premier Mylan Hodza of Czechoslovakia.

Outstanding in the broadcast
—which was carried throughout Canada and the United States and in Europe—was Mr. Eden's expressed hope that Great Britain and the United States might soon
sign a trade agreement.

"Canada has already made a trade agreement with her great neighbor, and I very much hope that it may be found possible for the United Kingdom also before very long to reach an agreement with the United States for the reduction of customs duties on a most favored nation basis," he said. "Such an agreement would surely redound not only to our own advantage but to that of the whole world."

SAFEST PATH

Mr. King said that along the path of international economic co-operation, "there surely lies an effective means of avoiding further widespread, if not worldwide, civil and internat-

strife."
The Prime Minister spoke of the relations among members of the British commonwealth of nations, in which "force and compulsion play no part."

CORDELL HULL

Mr. Hull, speaking from New York, said it is "difficult" to talk of peace when bombs are exploding and desperate armies are marching.

He declared, however, that through enlarged international trade there can come "an equilibrium of peaceful interest more stable than the equilibrium of matched cannon."

"The principles and methods essential to peace are simple,"
said Mr. Hull. "They are not those of extreme isolation on the one hand or aggression by force on the other..."

They were, he said, "national and international patience and self-restraint; avoidance of force
in the pursuit of policy; noninterference in the internal affairs of other nations; the use of peaceful methods to adjust differences; the faithful observance
by mutual understanding and orderly process; the reduction and limitation of over-burdening military armaments, and co-operation and interchange in the economic field."

CAMILLE CHAUTEMPS

Premier Chautemps declared that "Under the chaotic conditions of the present time, wherein imperialism threatens to spread beyond national borders
and where propaganda in favor of new ideologies jeopardizes the territorial integrity of states,
nothing short of a universal combination of nations... would be bound to insure the unqualified
and lasting blessing of peace."

Austrian Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg's address, read by an Austrian official at Vienna,
said intensive promotion of international trade is necessary for the peace and existence of smaller states.

Premier Van Zeeland declared his government is "supporting every effort" to bring nations closer together and lower trade barriers which the economic crisis of the early 1930's effected.

EDEN OPTIMISTIC

Mr. Eden said there "is happily
no reason to take too despondent
a view with regard to the present economic situation, either in my own country or in the world at large."

"International trade persists
and grows in spite of all difficulties, tariffs, quotas, exchange controls, import licenses..." he said.

"It has been a factor of the greatest benefit to the world that

LONDON COMMENTS

LONDON (CP-Havas)—The speech of Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, during an international broadcast of the National Peace Conference Sunday was praised by London newspapers Monday.

The address was seen as an indication the United States is veer-ing from a policy of isolation to one of co-operation in international affairs.

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, stated editorially:
"In the United States we are witnessing a mental struggle of men who desire to be left alone
to adapt international policy to new conditions, and yet know in their hearts that events have committed the United States inescapably to playing a large part in affairs outside her boundaries."

"That destiny is not to be escaped, as Cordell Hull and others who stand with him are plainly telling their people."

The Dean Retires

THE FEELING THAT VICTORIA WILL suffer an irreparable loss was entertained by many hundreds of Victoria churchgoers who listened to Very Rev. Cecil S. Quinton as he preached sermons at the morning and evening services at Christ Church Cathedral yesterday marking his retirement as dean. The same feeling will be evident at this evening's farewell gathering when a presentation will be made.

It is 20 years since the Dean came to Victoria to take up his duties. When he leaves this week for England it will be with the satisfaction of knowing that probably no man has won more friendships or such universal esteem as he has in these years. He has outspokenly presented his views from the pulpit with courage and vigor. At the same time he has considered and kindly ministered to his congregation in the course of the daily round. But there has been nothing of the dilettante parson of popular tradition about him. Although his heart has been in the Anglican Church, in which he was educated, there has been a broadness to the Dean's Christianity that has been fettered little by orthodoxy and ritual. In his presence the church has been more than a mere social convention—the state into which it has slumped in many places. He has never allowed himself to become bogged in abstruse and doubtful theology. He has brought to church an intellectualism in which a large part of the church has been so sadly lacking. He has functioned in the best tradition of the great liberal deans of the Church of England. He has been a leader among workers of all churches striving for the same great Christian objective to unite to the fullest extent with his pulpit eloquence enjoyed by congregations in churches other than that in which he was ordained.

He will be missed not only as a clergyman. The community has been enriched as the church has been strengthened because of his years among us. His departure will mean a loss to the cultural life of this community. As a lecturer he has been either deeply instructive or highly entertaining, according to the subjects on which his versatile mind prompted him to speak. Also, he has proved himself a sportsman and has done much to further clean sport of many kinds in this city.

The Dean is retiring from the pulpit here at the height of his powers and influence. A man so robustly active both in health and mind as he, and a man of such commanding personality will not, it can be surmised, lead that retired life which many another man might seek at his age. The best wishes of all who know him in Victoria go out to him on his departure for his native land. We all pray for success in the two years' work he plans for himself there. We trust it is only au revoir—and not good-bye.

Aviation Vision

GLENN MARTIN'S IMAGINATIVE picture of 250,000-pound air liners carrying 180 passengers on non-stop ocean flights might sound like a pipe dream—if it came from anyone else. But Mr. Martin has already advanced so far on the road to the super-airplane that we can only take it for granted that planes such as he describes will be in actual commercial operation within a decade.

Mr. Martin's prediction is interesting because the famous designer and builder of planes does not seem to believe that there is a theoretic limit to plane size. For a long time it had been supposed that the "curve of efficiency" diminished as size increased, and that there was a point beyond which added size would prove a drawback.

But he has already made studies of this projected 250,000-pound airplane. His studies indicate that such a ship, properly designed and built, should be perfectly practical. He remarks, "If we can build to 250,000 pounds, I am convinced there is no definite limit." If this is correct, we shall eventually have planes that will dwarf the mightiest sky liners of the present day.

Public Lawbreaking

THERE HAS BEEN A CERTAIN amount of fine talk about international law in connection with the activities of submarines in the Mediterranean, but most of it has been just talk. For the disarming but inescapable fact of the matter is that today there is no such thing as international law. It is just something that we remember from a former epoch.

The whole course of such powers as Italy, Germany and Russia in regard to the Spanish civil war has utterly disregarded all tenets of international law. So, of course, has the submarine campaign in the Mediterranean. So, too, has the war in China, where The New York Times points out that the contending armies are coldly refusing to take prisoners.

We might as well recognize the fact that we are living in an age of international anarchy, not international law. It is a hard fact to have to swallow, but there is no sense in deluding ourselves about it.

Toward Sanity

SIR HUBERT WILKINS, BEFORE HIS reported loss today, had announced his abandonment of further search for the Russian fliers missing somewhere in the Arctic wastes since August 13. Thus, unless a miracle occurs, will close in deep tragedy one of the most spectacular gestures in the history of aviation.

While the deepest sympathy must be felt for the lost men, slowly dying—or shortly to die—in the Arctic, it may be said that the whole unfortunate incident should serve to mark the end of such utterly useless stunt flights. The idea that the polar route could ever become a major air-line with a base at the pole was so bizarre that it is a marvel anyone could be found to take it seriously for a moment. As commercial flying progresses and regular transport lines are multiplied they must follow the world routes in the zones at present in use and of proven safety, routes where the chances of loss and disappearance are at a minimum, and not such routes as the North Pole where they are at a maximum of danger.

While no one could doubt the personal courage and ability of the lost fliers there should be condemnation for a government—or a department which conceived and carried out the equipment of the ship for its dangerous attempt. The partial success of the first flight in spite of the dangers encountered by the fliers and described by them should have been enough to show that the thing was impractical as an established route; it should have brought wisdom or at least hesitation in an attempted repetition of the adventure instead of breeding, as it seems to have bred, a wild and overweening eagerness and enthusiasm.

The day for stunt flying is past; all that can be learned by it has been learned; flying has grown up and it is now time for its sober and steady development along conservative lines. Foolhardiness is no longer a virtue in such matters.

Production Rivalry

THE NEWSPAPERS—RECENTLY printed a picture of a huge six-motored flying boat with which France is about to begin trans-Atlantic survey flights, and the captions remarked that the French were at last entering the "rivalry" for transoceanic air service.

It occurs to us that this is one form of international rivalry which is all to the good. In a day when most international rivalry finds expression in new cruisers, high-speed tanks, super-bombing planes and motorized infantry divisions, it is extremely comforting to see nations competing in straight-out commercial service.

Quicker communications, the speedier transport of goods and people, the conquering of the space which separates nations—these are things the world needs in ever-increasing quantities. The more competition we have in that field, the better off we all ought to be.

WEST WORTH SAVING

H. G. L. Strange in Canadian Business

We have, in the prairie provinces, 9,000,000 acres of land second to none in the world for profitable crop and livestock production. In addition, we have 11,000,000 acres in the semi-arid area that has a rainfall record and a yield record lower than the fertile belt, but still somewhat higher than the average found in Australia, the Argentine and Russia, and which will, I believe, profitably produce, on the average, the highest quality wheat in the world, but which will encounter about one drought year in four.

Next we have some 4,000,000 acres that should never have been taken out of grass and that should be put back to grass as quickly as possible, and the ranching industry, that once flourished here, but which was destroyed, restored, for here farming will be quite impossible. The people of this area, however, can easily be moved to more fertile land that has assured better rainfall.

Rust in wheat, I prophesy, will in all probability never trouble the west much after this year, for there will be sufficient seed of rust-resistant varieties available this coming spring to seed almost all of the acreage in wheat in the rust areas of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

I have calculated that the semi-arid area alone, as a whole, has brought in hard cash into Canada from abroad, during the past 20 years, no less a sum than $3,000,000,000, which vast amount of wealth, of course, has benefited all in eastern as well as in western Canada. It would seem, then, that this area is worth substantial efforts being made to preserve it.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

BETWEEN OURSELVES

SPEAKING, as it were in the family, it is clear that something is happening to the physical aspect of Victoria. I am not sure what it is or what it portends, but something pretty serious, I should think.

On all sides you find them tearing down old houses. Some of the finest mansions of the real Victorian era are in an obscene state of demolition and will soon be nothing more than a bare space on the ground. Large gardens are being split up into small lots, and little houses are sprouting like mushrooms in what used to be the sacred preserves of the local aristocracy.

All this, no doubt is the surge of progress and, perhaps, the growth of democracy and the improvement of our civilization. That part of it may be all right. The alarming thing, to those who are interested in the physical welfare of the city, is the tearing down and the falling down of a veritable waste of buildings in a broad circle around the business district.

At the present rate, within a few years there will be vast jungles of empty, weed-grown lots forming a sort of quarantine area between the business district and the residential, a no-man's land of ruin and desolation. Already the town is getting scarred up with tottering ruins and overgrown wildernesses in the very midst of habitation and of business, to the disfigurement and financial loss of all adjoining property, so that no man building a dwelling can be sure that he won't have a garbage heap or a haunted house for a neighbor next week.

We don't see these things because we are so used to them, but the stranger sees them and is appalled. To reach the beauty spots of Victoria he has to wade through desolation. Almost at the door of our Parliament Buildings indeed, creeping up on them all the time, is a growing slum. You enter the harbor and on one hand are the superb lawns of the Empress Hotel and on the other, dilapidation and despair. You go out to the green bowers of Oak Bay and the lush gardens of the Uplands and you must travel there by dingy, paintless streets which are in process of desertion.

Victoria is still the handsomest city in Canada but it won't be long at this rate. It will be a series of oases in a desert. Instead of planning it and preserving it, we are acting exactly like Arabs or Indians on the trail—making camp here today and moving on tomorrow, leaving only ashes and litter behind us.

WE TURN THE KEY

WE BROKE camp last week-end. It is the most melancholy job I know of. When you lock the cabin door for the last time it's like closing up the year, ending a whole chapter in your life, going into jail after a summer of freedom.

We have pulled up the boats, and piled the woodshed full and burned the accumulated piles of brush and rubbish. We have fed a last meal of crusts to Johnny, the brown squirrel, and the little boy from next door has caught his last crayfish and put him back carefully into the lake again, and his sister has poured her last jug of water on the single struggling nasturtium plant, which will have to fend for itself now, like the squirrels. We have wrapped the old gramophone up in the tattered raincoat and three blankets to keep it dry and warm during the winter, after playing the Caruso records for the last time (gramophones and Caruso having disappeared from city dwellings in favor of Grace Allen and Jack Benny).

And so the cabin is battered down for the winter. Everything at our lake is battered down for the winter. The squirrels have gathered in their pine cones. Mr. Burton has cut up five cords of wood and old Jerry Haycroft is about to hibernate like a bear in his warm shack. Presently the lake will be a distant country, far away from us over the mountains, and the squirrels will lie cosy in their nest and old Jerry will sit by his fire all winter, moving only as far as his bed, and the crayfish will lie there under the water undisturbed after a hard summer of being caught and dumped into the lake again.

But we will know that, however mad the world may become in the next six months, however men may treat one another, the little empty cabin will be waiting patiently there for us in the spring, waiting with dry wood (and plenty of good tinned stuff and the Caruso records) waiting, however we may neglect it, to welcome us back, a sane spot in a mad world.

So as we turn the key in the lock for the last time we cheer ourselves up with the thought that it won't be long. A few more weeks to Christmas (charming notion!) and only a little while to March and the first spurt of leaves, and before you know it the squirrels will be coming out of their holes and old Jerry will open his door and blink out at the sun for the first time since fall. And the key to the cabin will be waiting for us in its secret place, and so will the fishing worms which we inadvertently left in a tin on the kitchen table. I hope they have a pleasant winter.

FARMER

"I'VE BEEN thinking a lot lately," said the little boy from next door, meditatively munching a large raw carrot. "I've decided to be a farmer when I grow up, but the trouble is to get a good wife for a farmer. I want a wife that's big and strong so she can milk about 25 cows or 23 or so, every morning and churn the butter and feed the pigs. I don't care if she's pretty so long as she's strong, because a farmer like me needs a strong wife to help him, you know, not a pretty one; and where can you get a wife that would work these days? They don't want to work any more so it's getting so a man like me can't very well be a farmer at all."

If a lie is repeated often enough, it is finally accepted as truth—even by the person who started it.

The ability to remember isn't enough. What we need is a memory trained to forget the right things.

Ottawa Hails Australian Report On Social Credit

By NORMAN M. MacLEOD OTTAWA.

WHAT, within reasonable compass and without penetrating the realm of abstruse economics, is the answer to Social Credit?

At long last the authorities on Parliament Hill believe that they have found the reply to this vexing question. They take no credit to themselves for having produced it. Instead, the document upon which they are relying to confound Premier William S. Aberhart and his Albertan satellites is of distant origin. It is the report of the recent Australian Royal Commission on Banking and Finance, copies of which have reached the Canadian capital by courtesy of the Commonwealth authorities.

A noteworthy document which turns "thumbs down" on Social Credit after the most thorough and impartial sort of investigation, the report is one which, in the opinion of the Canadian ministry, is significant because of its intelligibility to the layman. In non-technical language which the individual on the street can understand it explains:

1. The basic failure underlying the whole doctrine of Social Credit.

2. The detailed errors of reasoning by means of which it builds up its specious case.

And because it provides the foregoing species of plain language reply to questions which have waited some years now to have an intelligible answer formulated, the report promises to be the most widely quoted document of the coming session of Parliament.

THE FACT that some persons enjoy an income which is more than sufficient to purchase all they need, while others cannot purchase the goods they require to maintain a reasonable standard of living," the report states, "indicates an unequal distribution of income. But that is a condition which the Social Credit proposals do not attempt to answer."

In this basic failure does the Australian Commission consider the central defect of the Social Credit theory to lie. The theory is recognized as perceiving accurately enough the familiar paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty. But all that it does, allegedly, is to point it out and emphasize it. None of its proposals, in other words, undertake to alter existing inequalities in the distribution of income.

Because of this neglect to suggest any dynamic change in the existing economic system, Social Credit, as the Australian commissioners see it, is foredoomed to failure. Its proposals simply boil down to the issuance of printing press money, which is merely inflation. And the experience of Germany and other nations with inflation stands as a warning for all peoples and for all times of the disastrous consequences which inevitably follow it.

AFTER dealing thus generally with Major Douglas's so-called panacea, the Australian commissioners proceed to examine in detail the process of reasoning by which it is built up. The basic Douglas contention is that a constant shortage of purchasing power exists. The proof offered is the fact that the wages paid out in an industry are never sufficient to enable its operatives to buy back the whole of its production. Thus, it is contended, is piled up the surplus of manufactured goods which leads to recurring cycles of unemployment.

Major Douglas states his argument in the form of his famous "A plus B" theorem. The A payments by an industry are those which go to the individuals in it, namely, wages, salaries, profits, dividends; the B payments are all others, such as raw materials, rent, taxes, or services. Since these B payments do not go to the workers in the industry to enable them to buy its products, purchasing power equivalent to the B payments must be given to the workers. Major Douglas contends, from some outside source. And so he proposes his Social Credit dividend.

The obvious error in this reasoning, the Australian commissioners point out, is to imagine that the B payments, simply because they go outside one industry, fail to become purchasing power for someone. As the commissioners put it: "Sooner or later the B payments of one industry will appear as the A payments of another industry in a further stage of production."

What Social Credit would have to show to establish its case, the Australian financial experts emphasize, is that in some strange way some of the costs which industry incurs in production are not distributed as purchasing power for someone, whether in the form of wages, salaries, payment of rent, taxes, or other services, but are lost from circulation entirely. If any sum were thus lost, it might be said that a shortage of purchasing power was occurring. But none is so lost. Expenditures for raw materials, rent, services, and taxes

all ultimately become purchasing power in someone's hands.

THE commissioners reject the contention of Major Douglas that the extraction of savings from circulation causes a deficiency of purchasing power.

"At any given moment," they state, "some are saving out of income, others are spending past savings, and others, again, are borrowing against future income for the purchase of consumable goods. At all times considerable amounts are being distributed to individuals in the form of super-annuation allowances, friendly society benefits, and the proceeds of life insurance and endowment policies, all of which represent savings or the result of savings made in the past." Thus the situation is one which balances itself.

Finally, the Australian authorities deal with Social Credit's suggestion that shortage of purchasing power is created by the repayment to a bank of credit which has been used by a manufacturer to place an article on the market. "It is customary," they state, "for advocates of the Social Credit theory to refer to the payment of a bank overdraft as 'the cancellation of credit.' It is true that the debt of the borrower is thereby reduced or extinguished, but the question is not whether the total volume of bank credit in use by industry or any part of it is canceled. Provided that the bank is able and willing to lend the money to some other borrower, the repayment of a bank advance or overdraft has no more effect upon the purchasing power of the community as a whole than has the repayment to any other lender. If, however, the banks are unable or unwilling to make fresh loans, there is a tendency for the purchasing power of the community to contract, just as there is a tendency for it to expand when bank advances are increasing. The point is that both of these are temporary conditions which do not prove the existence of a permanent tendency toward a shortage of purchasing power."

Parliament Hill considers the Australian report the most thorough examination of the Social Credit theory which has yet been made by an impartial body. Federal members of the two old-line parties are wondering how the Social Credit M.P.'s will attempt to answer it. One thing is taken for granted: That the absence of logic on their side will not bring about the silence of the federal Social Credit members—any more than it has restrained the course which Premier Aberhart has followed.

THE DEAN AND PLATONIC FRIENDSHIPS

To the Editor: I have read with interest the correspondence headed "The Dean and Platonic Friendship," and was sorry to read Mr. Eckman's letter in which he decries the Dean preaching other than what he calls the gospel. If the gospel is the teaching of Jesus, didn't He say "I am come that ye may live more abundantly." Never once did Jesus run down sex, but He had some very dear women friends who followed Him right to the cross. It is the obscurantist preachers of the gospel like Mr. Eckman who drive intellectual people away from church and broadminded preachers like our Dean who win them back.

I also want to reply to Susan Edwards, who asks "What is sex?" This question is well answered in this month's issue of The Readers Digest. A writer says sex is the glance of an eye, the touch of a hand, a smile. Sex is so much part of our being that it is impossible to get away from it, and I do not believe there could be a friendship even between people of the same sex with no element of sex in it. Sex enters strongly into religion, especially hymns. Take the old favorite, "Jesus Lover of My Soul, Let Me to Thy Bosom Fly." Strong sex suggestion these. The nuns in convents pray, "My darling Jesus." When you see schoolgirls adoring each other or some schoolmistress or two women friends who cannot live without each other, that in a way is a perversion of sex, and friendships between men and women are much healthier.

The reason the Oxford Group has fallen through in Victoria is greatly due to the leaders mistakenly dividing the males from the females. Young people who have been educated together, won't stand for that kind of nonsense. But I happen to know that the Dean resisted this early Victorian attitude towards the sexes, but was persuaded by the Oxford Group leaders.

I think he has been misquoted as saying that there must be no element of sex in a platonic friendship. He was no doubt referring to the abuses of sex and not meaning true love between a cultured intellectual man and woman. As he said last Sunday evening these obscurantists seem never to have heard of Streeter, Dean Inge, Dean Matthews and other members of the Modern Churchman's Union, who all take a modern view of sex. Of course, all decent people hate promiscuity. L. B.

He's the author of that best-seller, "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

New York—The world's championship baseball series is to begin on Monday, October 7. This date is said to have been provisionally agreed upon by the national commission which met today to draft the plans. The date for the opening of the series was based upon the assumption that the New York Nationals and the Boston Americans would win the pennants in their respective divisions.

A distinguished Welshman arrived in the city yesterday in the person of Sir J. Herbert Robert, Bart., M.P. for West Denbighshire for the last 20 years, who is spending the recess in Canada studying political and other developments.

Another church will shortly be added to the edifices in the district around Quadra Street between North Park and Johnson Streets, which has become the most popular for places of worship. In this area St. John's Anglican and the First Congregational churches are building and the First Presbyterian is locating.

Letters to the Editor

A BEAR STORY

To the Editor:—Quite often recently with friends and others I have stopped to interview Urs: Kermodi at Beacon Hill Park. We made the discovery that when he is standing erect with his front paws against the railing he will place his left front paw on his stomach when asked "Where do you want it?" in offering him something to eat.

The children were delighted and brought him good things to eat daily just to see him perform. I wonder who taught him this act.

One lady said, "Isn't he sweet, I just love him." A gentleman from California said "he appeared to belong to some secret society."

In the forenoon we found his reception room clean and respectable, but in the afternoon it was so disgustingly dirty, that he failed to "keep sweet." There were always two and quite often three large piles of excrement between the bear and his audience. On Veterans' Day I heard strangers speak unfavorably of his premises.

I wonder if the City Council would be good enough to instruct his chambermaid to give his reception room a once-over each afternoon? This would permit him to receive callers with that degree of decency and respect that the ancient traditions of his order of Bears of the Arctic Circle are entitled to.

DRAMATICS PLANS

To the Editor:—At a very poorly attended meeting of those interested in amateur dramatics held at the club room of the Little Theatre Association Friday, the elimination contest committee was authorized to conduct the Regional Festival with such increase of personnel and adjustment of duties as appeared desirable to the chairman. It was also decided to hold the elimination contest at the Empire Theatre on Friday and Saturday, November 26 and 27, if sufficient plays are entered.

If by Saturday, October 2, at least six plays have not been notified to the secretary, Mr. E. T. Simmons, 1171 Fort Street, no elimination contest will take place, and therefore any players desiring to enter the Regional will have to pay the Regional entrance fee of $40, for which tickets are given. It is therefore to the interest of all those who wish to compete to see that the necessary number of plays are entered.

The entrance fee for the eliminations contest is $10, for which tickets are given.

T. L. THORPE-DOUBBLE, Chairman Regional Festival, D.D.F., 1712 Monteth Street.

A HOUSEMAID'S LOT

To the Editor:—Is there any legal protection for the housemaid? If not, why not?

The government protects by the 48-hour a week minimum wage law men and women working in stores, restaurants and other places of business, with double pay for overtime. The lot of the housemaid seems to be very different.

In a recent experience I worked approximately 76 hours per week. How does that look beside 48 hours per week?

A lady here happened to be looking for a housemaid. I was called on the telephone and an appointment made for an interview. From the interview I understood that the position called for a certain refinement of character, conscientiousness and dependability.

The master and mistress were elderly people who did not entertain and did not go out. A cook was kept also. There was no breakfast to get as one tray was taken up at night and the other in the morning. The housework was finished for the day by lunch time, 12.45 p.m. When the work was done after lunch there would be an hour or two free-time practically every afternoon for a walk or to do as you pleased till tea at 4.10 p.m. One afternoon a week until 10.30 and one until 6 p.m. Every other Sunday afternoon until 10.30. The work was not at all hard. That sounded good to me, as I knew I could not stand hard housework for any length of time. I showed the lady my references, and was engaged.

I went to work. Steady work from 6.30 a.m. to 2.15 p.m.; from 3.30 p.m. to 9.15 p.m. When I finally got up to my room after lunch I did not feel much like going for a walk; a short rest, a change of clothing, and down again to serve tea. Excepting on the cook's afternoons off when I had to be on duty all day and prepare and serve the meal. Everything had to be done according to a most elaborate and cumbersome system—everything for the comfort and convenience of the employers and the discomfort and inconvenience of the employees.

Perhaps I expect too much. I have received consideration from a few of my employers and it may have spoiled me. When the lady whom I first interviewed (the secretary of my employer) met me at the boat, I carried both my bags to the car and put them in myself. When we arrived at the house, I struggled with both bags again and was left to carry them up the walk and meet the other maid by myself. Was it expecting too much to think that common courtesy was in order? When the day of my leaving arrived and I was paid for my week's work, the lady of the house complained of the cost of the experiment and the inconvenience to herself—there was never a thought of the inconvenience it would cause me. Instead of being settled with a good job, I am now at an inexpensive rooming house hoping to find another while my money lasts.

One thing in favor of the whole affair, the pay was good. However, I considered life much too short to put up with the things one had to pay or no pay. There are dozens of cases far worse than this. Work, work, more work, without any consideration in return.

I happen to have a home to go to; many girls haven't—and, believe me, it isn't a pleasant feeling when you have no refuge at all.

We think with horror of the slavery of the old days. The slavery is still with us, only the setting is different. We lose sight of the facts because they are covered by so-called Christianity—the facts are there just the same.

Some people still wonder why there is so much crime. I wonder there isn't more.

A WORKING GIRL, Box 775, Victoria.

Popular Pair Had Pretty Wedding

Miss Mabel Gilliland Is Bride Of Mr. G. S. Thornbury

Metropolitan Church was beautifully decorated on Saturday evening for the wedding of Mabel Eliza, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gilliland, 1321 Johnson Street, and Mr. George S. Thornbury, son of Mrs. S. Thornbury of Perth, Ont., and the late Mr. Samuel Thornbury. Tall white baskets filled with pink Nymph gladioli edged the platform which was centred with a large basket of pink and white gladioli. On either side of the pulpit were tall ivory tapers in silver candelabra.

Rev. A. E. Whitehouse conducted the service and as the register was being signed, Mrs. Fred Hawes sang "Still as the Night," accompanied by Mr. Edward Parsons, who played the wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride was attired in a wedding gown of ivory suede lace with a long train. The deep lace collar fell softly over the shoulder forming the short sleeve of the dress, with which was worn a short jacket fastened with tiny lace-covered buttons, with long sleeves forming points over the hands. Her long veil was of tulle worn with a coronet of orange blossoms, she carried a showed bouquet of Ophelia roses, bouvardia and lily of the valley.

Mrs. Roy Linley of Penticton, in rose pink moire, was matron of honor, and the bride's sister, Miss Helen Gilliland, in aqua blue moire, was the bridesmaid. Their frocks were made alike, trimmed with the contrasting color, tight bodices finished with knots of rosebuds on each shoulder, with full skirts in redingote style edged with pleated frills and graduating to short train. Their hats were made in off-the-face styles of pleated frills. They carried colonial bouquets of pink rosebuds, carnations and delphinium. Mr. Alex Geddes was best man, and Mr. Fred Hawes and Mr. Harry Gilliland ushered the guests to their pews which were designated with bows of white tulle and pale pink gladioli.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland welcomed a host of friends at their home after the ceremony, in a profusion of roses, gladioli, chrysanthemums and asters in pink and white. Mrs. Gilliland wore a gown of iris blue chiffon velvet with matching turban. Mrs. Thornbury, who assisted in receiving was in black chiffon velvet and both wore corsage bouquets of Talisman rosebuds and violas.

The bride's cake centred the table, standing between silver candelabra holding tall ivory tapers. Silver vases of swanonia and Cecil Brunner rosebuds were placed at each end of the table.

After a honeymoon at Quilich Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Thornbury will reside at Carberry House, Victoria. The bride traveled in a coat of Atlantic blue trimmed with grey fox and a matching hat, worn with a Deja model floral blue frock.

Among the lovely gifts were a chest of flat silver from the bride's associates at the Parliament Buildings, a silver relish dish from the Robert Burns Micking Chapter I.O.D.E., of which the bride is a member; a cheque from the Shawinigan Lumber Co., of which the bridegroom is a partner, individual gifts from the members of the firm, and a table lamp from the outside staff.

Mark Silver Wedding Date

Maj. and Mrs. K. Saunders of Vancouver Celebrate Anniversary

Major and Mrs. Kenneth Saunders of Vancouver arrived in Victoria yesterday to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Steele, 57 Howe Street. Mrs. Steele and Mrs. Saunders are sisters.

Major and Mrs. Saunders were married in Victoria. They were both born here and attended local schools. At the time of their marriage Mrs. Saunders was employed in the business office of The Times.

Major Saunders was one of the first to volunteer for the Royal Naval Air Service shortly after the outbreak of the Great War, and he served with that branch of the service until the Armistice. He was decorated for his very valuable services.

On returning to Victoria, Major Saunders continued to follow aviation. During a flight from the enclosure of the Willows race track with his wife, Major Saunders crashed, and both were badly shaken up.

Sixteen years ago Major Saunders went east to accept a pilot's job, and for years he flew out of Grand Mere, Quebec. He was one of the pioneers in winter flying to the mining centres in northern Quebec, and also became an expert in aerial photography. He flew mails up and down the St. Lawrence River.

Some months ago Major Saunders was appointed to the Department of Civil Aviation and was sent to Vancouver to act as assistant to Carter Guest, who is in charge of civil aviation in British Columbia. Vancouver is now looked upon as the main aerial base in Canada, and great developments are forecast for that centre.

Major Saunders has compiled a great record in commercial flying and has probably more flying hours than any other aviator in Canada, and is exceeded by few in the world.

Major and Mrs. Saunders will return to Vancouver tonight.

SAYS WINDSORS TO VISIT U.S.

Baltimore News-Post Reports Duke and Duchess to Arrive This Fall

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The Baltimore News-Post said an "authoritative source" stated Saturday that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor would come to the United States this fall, in either October or November.

The paper said: "The former King and the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, for whom he abdicated the throne... expect to take up their residence somewhere near Baltimore, with strong probability that it will be the fashionable Green Spring Valley neighborhood."

"The statement that the famous couple would be in this country has been whispered about Baltimore for several days, with an unofficial background to clothe it with more than an atmosphere of baseless rumor."

"Although the news is clouded with mystery and is denied whenever it is broached to anyone who has the slightest relations with either the British government or the former Baltimore king, nevertheless there is little doubt the rumored visit will take place."

THE OTHER WOMAN LIVES JUST AROUND THE CORNER

If you seem unreasonable, but most men cannot understand why a woman who is usually happy and loving should have recurring periods when her whole character seems changed. He cannot appreciate the distress, the discomfort that all women must endure. He does not know what it is to do housework with an aching back and failing energy. All he does know is that other women seem more cheerful by comparison. Are you such a three-quarter wife?

Don't let the ordeal that all women face cause you avoidable discomfort or endanger your home. Do as so many wise women have—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three or four years of life. 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "smiling through."

A September Bride

Mrs. George Alfred Thomson, the former Miss Ethel Rhodes, who was married recently at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Weddings

WOOTEN-BORTHWICK

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Stephen's Church, Mount Newton, on Saturday, when Rev. G. S. A. Bastin united in marriage Margaret Graham Borthwick to Alfred Charles John Wooten.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. E. V. Leslie in the absence of her father, looked charming in a long white brocade silk dress with a coronet trimmed with small white flowers. Her bouquet was of pale pink and white gladioli and carnations with pale blue streamers. She was attended by Miss Edna Hunt as bridesmaid in an ankle-length pale blue silk dress with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink, white and mauve flowers with pale pink streamers. Mr. Roy Wooten, brother of the groom, was best man, and Messrs John Paterson and Bert Wooten were ushers. The church was prettily decorated with flowers by friends of the young couple.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom. The guests were received by Mrs. C. Wooten in a black lace dress with white accessories. The table was centred with a two-tier wedding cake, with a large white bell suspended from the ceiling and white streamers. The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful gifts, among them being a cheque from the bride's father. The bride traveled in a smart brown coat over a dress of beige with brown trimmings and a brown hat. After a honeymoon motoring up island the young couple will reside in Royal Oak.

THOMSON-JUBB

At St. Saviour's Church on Saturday evening, Rev. P. V. Venables united in marriage, Kathleen, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jubb, 202 Dundas Street, and Mr. William Roy Thomson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Thomson, 1013 Queens Avenue. The church was decorated with standard baskets of gladioli and during the service the hymn, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us," was sung by the congregation.

Mr. Thomson gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a pretty frock of pink net with a full knife-pleated skirt and short puff sleeves, and a graceful veil of pink net, which was confined beneath a bandeau of pink flowers and worn over her face during the service. She carried a white vellum prayer book, with streamers showered with bridal roses.

The bride's sisters, Mrs. H. Hanson, Duncan, in green net over taffeta, and Miss Marion Jubb, in mauve, and Miss Jennifer Sills, in pale yellow net, were the bridesmaids, wearing frocks fashioned alike with short puff sleeves and banded at the hem with taffeta, and wore off-the-face matching hats. They all carried colonial bouquets. Three-year-old Patsy McKinnon was a dainty flower girl in a blue Kate Greenaway frock with a pink sash, with a wreath of pink flowers in her hair and carried a tiny Victorian posy. Mr. Hubert Hanson was best man, and the ushers were Mr. William Hamilton and Mr. Jack Bradshaw.

A small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the service, during which the bride and groom stood in a window embrasure between baskets of gladioli. Mrs. Jubb wore a dress of periwinkle blue crepe and lace, a grey squirrel neck-piece, and a black hat, and assisting her was the bridegroom's mother, in navy blue. They wore corsage bouquets of pink and red carnations, respectively.

The wedding cake, iced with blue and pink flowers, and surmounted with a silver vase of swansonia, centred the supper table.

The bride and groom left at midnight for the mainland, and on their return, will make their home on Queen's Avenue. The bride went away in a turquoise blue silk and wool imported suit with a beaver collar and brown accessories. Among the many gifts, the bride received a mahogany writing desk from her associates in the dining-room at David Spencer Ltd., and a rose satin bedspread and luncheon cloth from the delivery department of David Spencer Ltd.

ANDREW and IMOGENE

By ROE FULKERSON

"Where have you been?" asked Imogene drowsily, as Andrew came up on the veranda.

"Down on the beach," he replied.

"What have you been doing?"

The question was an accusation.

"Why?"

"You haven't a bathing suit on, so you haven't been swimming. You haven't a fishing rod, so you haven't been fishing."

"I was just watching some kids swimming."

"Kids?"

"Youngsters, then. Looked like a high school crowd. Probably visiting Susan Porter over at their cottage."

"All boys, of course?"

"There were a couple of boys, but the other dozen were girls."

"I thought as much!"

"Girls are prettier than boys when they are swimming," said Andrew.

"I know you think so!"

"Listen!" protested Andrew. "You talk as though my watching a crowd of pretty youngsters diving and swimming was a crime. Why shouldn't I sit on the pier and watch them diving off the springboard and swimming around like fish and having a good time generally?"

"No married woman ever enjoyed having her husband sit around watching a lot of pretty girls much younger than she is, especially when they were wearing these modern swim suits," said Imogene.

"Darling, I never walk down the street with you that you don't stop at every department store window and look carefully at every dress on display. I never walk past a shoe store with you, that you don't look with great interest at every pair of sandals, slippers and oxfords in the window. There was never a hat store on the street before which you did not stop and look carefully at every hat in the window. You are just the same way about windows displaying jewelry, stockings, hand-bags, fur coats, luggage and all the other things you like.

"I always wait patiently until you are through your window shopping. I realize that you don't expect to own any of these things, but they are pretty and you admire them."

"All I have been doing for the last hour or so is window shopping. I have just been looking at something I admire tremendously, with no thought of ever owning any of the things I have been admiring. They are as pretty as a basket full of pups, or a litter of kittens chasing each other around."

"When I stop in front of windows with pretty things in them, are you never afraid that I will see something I will want to buy?" demanded Imogene.

"Well, maybe!" admitted Andrew.

"That's the way I feel about your window shopping. If those girls were a basket of pups, as you suggest, I might be afraid that you would want to buy another dog. If they were a litter of kittens, I would be afraid that you would bring home a pretty one."

"Were you afraid that I would come home with one of those pretty little mermaids under my arm?"

"I just don't like your idea of window shopping," said Imogene. "I don't like to see you get in the path of temptation. I don't want you to get ideas in your head. Those young girls are entirely too attractive."

"Oh, well, I forgive you," said Andrew generously.

"Forgive me? I have done nothing! You are just remembering the way you feel when I stop in front of a shop window, that's all. You know how nervous it makes you!"

Giants Cling to Slim Lead Over Chicago

Sports Mirror

LIGHTNING, the optimist has said, doesn't strike twice in the same place.

The pessimist has paraphrased this by saying that athletic ability doesn't sprout up twice in the same household.

He means that the offspring of some sports giant hardly ever is as good at the game as pappy or mama was.

Walter Johnson Jr., for instance, could not pitch in a Class D league. . . . Christy Mathewson Jr. turned to aviation for a living. . . . Ty Cobb Jr. is a tennis coach. . . . Jack Brittain's son cannot whip the worst palookas. . . . And the sons of golf stars of the past cannot get out of the rough. . . .

Which is why Dorothy May Sutton Bundy's success on the tennis courts is all the more commendable. Born to a royal couple of the courts—Anna May Sutton, U.S. women's champion in 1904, and Tom Bundy, Maurice McLoughlin's champion doubles partner of 25 years ago, Dorothy is pattering right along in her parents' footsteps.

But the neighbors always said that May Sutton's little girl would be a great tennis player like her mommy.

They said that some day she would be one of America's greatest women tennis players, when she got too old for her dolls and settled down to serious tennis.

"But not too serious," mama always cautioned. "I don't believe in tennis just for the sake of winning—you mustn't forget that it's a game and all of us should play it as such."

This apparently made little impression on the little Bundy because when she was upsetting Champion Alice Marble the other day she was playing as though it were a matter of life and death. With match point against her, her back to the wall, Dodo, as they call her, was a grim little thing.

And maybe it was a matter of life and death with her. Perhaps she is getting a little sick and tired of having people refer to her as May Sutton's little girl. Maybe she would like to get them to reverse that and start referring to her famous parent as Dorothy Bundy's mother.

This would not disappoint Mama Bundy. Although she preached a doctrine of not taking tennis too seriously, she raised Dorothy to be a champion.

The little girl (one of four tennis-playing children) swung a racquet when she was six, won kids' tournaments when she was 11, and was taken to Wimbledon to watch the champions play when she was 12.

It is only natural that her game is a lot like her mother's was. It is smart, well-rounded, and she drives a ball with considerable force.

Dorothy has a pretty, sun-tanned face, a flashing smile, and honey-colored hair. She is a strong, chunky girl.

Burnetts Will Play Navy Men

Canucks and Burnetts boxa squads have amalgamated and will in future play under the colors of the latter club. Therefore Burnetts should have a strong line-up for their tussle with navy stickhandlers tomorrow evening at the Naval Barracks, which will start at 8. The line-up follows: Coleman, Hodgkinson, Coleman, Entwistle, Coleman, Froughton, Sarigson, McSweeney, Redknapp, Peebles, Jackson, Parrott and Hooper.

Former Defeat Cards In Tenth; Berger Is Star

Crashes Homer in Ninth to Tie Score; Cubs Beat Brooklyn in Ball Race

Yankees Beaten

Unless all signs are pointed backward, before the week runs out the New York Yankees will have clinched the American League pennant, and the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs will either have settled the National League baseball squabble or give definite indication as to just what Mr. Fan can expect.

From the senior circuit standpoint, New York's Giants and Chicago's bolstered Cubs, who are, at the moment, 2½ games apart in that order, go to work on each other's throats in a series starting tomorrow. From their three-game fuss, either the Giants will stagger all but "in" with the pennant, or the Cubs will wallop their way to a fight down to the tape.

Over in the rival loop, meantime, the Yankees, with a 10½ game lead, only need any combination of five victories or five Detroit defeats, or a collection of the two, mathematically to eliminate the Tigers and nail the flag to their mast for another year.

Before swinging at each other, the Giants and Cubs have a little preliminary work today in winding up their series with the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn's daffy Dodgers, respectively. It seemed "fate" was taking a hand in the Giants' behalf yesterday as they nosed out the Cards, 4 to 3, in 10 innings. Behind 2 to 1, Manager Bill Terry reached into the bag and came up with a futile pinch-hitter for his most powerful pounder, Hank Leiber, in the seventh.

TIMELY HOMER

Afterward, there was nothing to do but give Leiber's centerfield job to Wally Berger, who has been about as popular with the Giant boss for a long time as a couple of broken throwing arms. In the ninth, however, Wally belted a home run to tie the score, and ultimately lead the Giants to a heart-breaker win over Lonnie Warneke.

Meantime, big Max Butcher held the Cubs to four hits, but one of those was Gabby Hartnett's homer with a mate aboard—just enough to cash in on Curt Davis's classy flinging for a 2 to 1 win over the Dodgers, leaving the pennant situation in this form:

Team	Won	Lost	Behind Play
Giants	84	53	17
Cubs	82	55	19

Elden Auker's submarine ball baffled the Yankees no end, and the Tigers trampled the American League leaders, 8 to 1. The Chicago White Sox were mathematically eliminated from the pennant race by only breaking even in a twin bill with the Washington Senators, losing the opener, 5 to 4, and taking the nightcap, 9 to 1.

Philadelphia's unpredictable Athletics astonished themselves, the baseball world in general, but most of all the Cleveland Indians, by topping the Tribe twice, 8 to 4 and 5 to 3. The Boston Red Sox-St. Louis Browns' bargain bill was rained out. Pittsburgh's Pirates split with the Phillies, winning the afterpiece, 5 to 1, after the Phils took the opener, 8 to 1. The Boston Bees and Cincinnati Reds did the same thing, Boston coming through, 7 to 6, and then losing, 2 to 0, on Ival Gooden's two-run homer and Gene Schott's three-hitter.

COAST LEAGUE

After a week of upsetting baseball, Portland Beavers were south-bound for San Francisco and San Diego was headed for Sacramento today with the first games of the Shaughnessy play-offs to decide the 1937 Pacific Coast League baseball championship listed for tomorrow.

Only two teams today held the same positions they were in a week ago. Sacramento started the week in the top spot and finished there, 32,500 richer. The (Turn to Page 10, Col. 3)

63-Pound Spring Salmon Caught

Using a handline with a homemade plug for a lure, "Bob" White, soldier angler from Work Point Barracks, hooked and landed a 63-pound spring salmon yesterday afternoon in the waters between Brothie Ledge and the Breakwater.

It is by far the largest spring caught in the waters around Victoria this year. The big fellow struggled for 20 minutes but was no match for the expert at the other end of the line.

JILLION COPS MAIN EVENT

Son of Black Servant Runs Fastest Six Furlongs of Willows Meeting

Running the fastest three-quarters of the present meeting, H. M. Hollyfield's Jillion easily won the Craigflower Handicap, feature of the race card at the Willows Saturday.

The eight-year-old son of Black Servant was hustled from the start by Jockey Ralph Young and breezed in front all the way. H. M. Fullerton's classy mare, Wracia, who had defeated Jillion in Vancouver over one mile and one-eighth, finished second. Time for the six furlongs and 30 yards was 1:15.25.

A double win for the Emerald Stock Farm stable of Frank Beban, the Nanaimo sportsman, was the other high spot on a programme of excellent racing, attended by a crowd which jammed the stands. Beban's white and gold colors flashed home in front on Doctor Larry in the second and Maize B. in the fifth. Both are sired by Beban's stallion Somer's Heir. It was Maize B's second win of the week.

Enlo in the sixth, Sugar Creek in the fourth, Boy o' Mine in the hurdle race and Jillion were also scoring their second consecutive wins.

The Saturday crowd found no trouble picking the winners and seven of the eight were favorites in the mutuels. Only upset for the betters was Sim Tee, a son of Simony, which galloped home in the first and rewarded $19.50 straight. The daily double paid only $8, but the quinnella in the seventh returned $42.50 when Peace Leg, an outsider, ran second.

was 6.25 metres (20 feet 6 1/4 inches). The listed marks bettered were: 80 metres, 9.8 seconds, by Miss Walsh; and 100 yards, 11 seconds, by B. Burke, South Africa; and broad jump, 5.98 metres (19 feet 7 3/4 inches), by Hitomi, Japan.

Boy Spectator Injured in Scramble Following Grid Battle With Regina

CALGARY (CP)—Ill-feeling marked the end of the Western Interprovincial Football Union game Saturday when Calgary Bronks defeated Regina Roughriders 8 to 7. A Regina player, baited by the crowd, threw a water bottle into the stands. It inflicted a two-inch gash in the side of a boy spectator's neck.

Police were called to clear a crowd milling around the dressing-room entrance after the game. Bronks' officials said it was unlikely any action would be taken against the Regina player.

BLAME CALGARY FANS

REGINA—The charge that Calgary fans started the melee after the Calgary-Regina rugby game on Saturday was made by Roughriders as they arrived home yesterday. A boy in the crowd suffered a cut on the side of his face when hit by a flying bottle. Coach Dean Griffing declared that as he walked into the dressing-room under the stands, a spectator threw a bottle at him. He picked it up and tossed it back, he claims, and a moment later Jimmy Partridge, Regina end man, came out to see what was going on and was hit on the head by a bottle.

Roughriders pointed out that they had no bottles in their possession as they came off the field.

CALGARY—Calgary Bronks today considered broken the jinx that has hovered over home teams in the Western Canada Rugby Union this season. Playing before a scant crowd of approximately 1,900 paid admissions here yesterday, Bronks took advantage of a third quarter Regina fumble to edge out an 8 to 7 victory over Regina Roughriders. It was the first time this season a home team had won a western conference game.

The win, Bronks, third in four starts, cemented their hold on first place in the league standings.

Although statistics showed Bronks on a par with Roughriders offensively and with a slight edge defensively, a fumble by Paul Kirk was responsible for them winning the game. Standing under his own goal posts to catch a punt, the Roughriders' backfielder dropped the ball when tackled hard by Jerry Searight, Calgary centreman. Keith Gibson, Bronk end, pounced on the loose ball behind the goal line for a touchdown.

Ed Rorvig's kick for convert gave Calgary an 8 to 7 lead they held until the end.

BOWLERS MEET

A meeting of senior fivepin bowlers will be held tonight at 8 at the Olympic Recreation Alleys to organize for the coming season. Team captains are advised to get in touch with their players.

Factory Worker Wins Marathon

TORONTO—A 29-year-old motor factory worker with the steadiest five-year long-distance running record in the Dominion, Jimmy Bartlett of Oshawa, Ont., clinched a decade of racing Saturday with a smashing triumph in Canada's marathon trial for the British Empire Games.

Never worse than second anywhere on the 26-mile course, the little sandy-haired Olympian came home in 2 hours 41 minutes 39 seconds, more than two minutes in front of Lloyd Longman of Toronto, with whom he ran neck and neck for more than 15 miles. Bartlett scarcely was breathing hard at the finish.

B.C. Basketball Under New Set-up

Soccer Decision Not Yet Definite

Although no definite decision was reached, prospects of Victoria having a franchise in the intercity Football League, were considerably brighter today following Saturday night's conference between the British Columbia Football Commission and members of the Victoria and District League at the Empress Hotel.

Secretary John Richardson, Vancouver, said that nothing could be decided until the commission holds a meeting with Nanaimo officials some time this week. The final decision will be rendered after the commission meets on the mainland following the up-land session. It was decided at the meeting that the Victoria and Vancouver leagues would operate on their own this season.

Provincial Association Adopts Own System For Registering Players

VANCOUVER (CP)—Basketball leagues throughout British Columbia today were preparing to put in operation a new system of amateur basketball registration.

Their action follows approval of the system drawn up by Walter Hardwick, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, by the British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association in annual meeting here Saturday.

Essential features of the plan are that it empowers branch basketball association to pass on the amateur status of players and makes the C.A.B.A.'s definition of an amateur applicable to the British Columbia Association.

Decision on amateur status rested previously with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. Adoption of the new registration system follows severance of relations between the C.A.B.A. and the A.A.U. of C., effective last June.

Proposals and amendments to the constitution passed at the meeting included:

A resolution by M. C. Gordon, council member for the Lower Mainland Amateur Basketball Association, that the district associations use the same constitution and by-laws as currently used by the B.C.A.B.A.

A clause was added to the above stating that the B.C.A.B.A. constitution and by-laws shall over-ride conflicting district association constitutions and by-laws.

A second resolution by Gordon that the senior A-teams shall play off with the senior B-teams at the discretion of the executives.

A resolution by Walter Hardwick, treasurer of the B.C.A.B.A., that all sections of the constitution and by-laws regarding the A.A.U. of C. be deleted in so far as men's basketball is concerned.

A resolution, also by Hardwick, that the British Columbia Basketball Officials' Association be abolished and its work carried on by a committee of the B.C.A.B.A. operating largely under the rules of the Canadian Referees' Association.

A third resolution by Hardwick that B.C.A.B.A. attempt to institute a provincial interhigh school playoff series.

The meeting voted to put aside $50 for the assistance of junior teams and add $50 to the reserve fund.

M. C. Gordon was elected chairman of the referees' board.

President McTaggart Cowan, secretary Ken Walton, treasurer Walter Hardwick, vice-president Gordon Woodridge, Victoria, and second vice-president Art Stevenson of Kamloops, all were re-elected.

Hon. George M. Weir, British Columbia Minister of Education; Dr. G. M. Gillespie, Vancouver; Dr. R. W. Irving, Kamloops; S. G. Braylock, Trail; J. Hunt, Nanaimo, were named honorary presidents of the body.

Y BADMINTON

The Y.M.C.A. Badminton Club will open its season October 1, Warren Martin, president of the club announced today. The annual meeting will be held September 29 at the Y.M.C.A.

The hymn sung was "Abide With Me," and Mrs. F. Thomson sang as a solo "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." As the casket was carried from the chapel, and from the hearse to St. Princess Margaret, the bagpipes were played by Miss Lillian Grant.

ALIMONY CLAIM APPEAL OPENS

The appeal of Agnes Hazelton from the Supreme Court ruling of Mr. Justice Fisher in Vancouver, in which her claim for alimony from Carroll Hazelton was dismissed, opened before the Court of Appeals here today.

This morning's argument revolved around the ability of the trial judge to dismiss the action on the grounds of failure of the plaintiff to prove the validity of the marriage.

C. F. Maclean, appearing for the appellant, cited cases to substantiate the claim Mrs. Hazelton had acted within the law when she had presumed a previous husband dead after failing to hear from him since he left her in 1907. The trial judge had questioned the validity of the marriage on the grounds the previous husband might have been still living.

Appellant's counsel stated Mrs. Hazelton had instituted inquiries over the previous husband through the Vancouver chief of police prior to the date of her marriage to Hazelton. That inquiry and others she had made from friends of the previous husband failed to bring forth any information.

Appellant's counsel contended they were sufficient to permit presumption of death. In the court below, Mrs. Hazelton claimed alimony from Hazelton whom, she contends, left her several years ago.

Pipeless Organ in New Bandshell

One of the outstanding features at the Canadian National Exhibition, in Toronto, was the public concerts from the new Bandshell, where visitors were entertained with concerts played on the new Northern-Hammond Organ. Instead of music created by reeds, blowers and pipes, the Northern-Hammond is operated entirely by electrical impulses giving a richness and variety of tone unsurpassed even by great cathedral pipe organs costing many thousands of dollars. The new Northern-Hammond Organ is now being demonstrated in the music salon at Fletcher Bros., the organist being Edward Parsons of the Metropolitan United Church, and is causing considerable comment in music circles.

NEW GERMAN THREATS
Against Lithuania
BERLIN (CP-Havas)—A threat of action against Lithuania was sounded in German newspapers Sunday over "confiscation" of the property of German residents of Memel for harbor and frontier defences.

The Germany of today is not the enfeebled government of 1919 and will take action against "intolerable excesses" carried out by the Kaunas government, the officially-inspired press said.

Under the Treaty of Versailles, Germany ceded the Memel territory, adjacent to east Prussia, to Lithuania.

Fumes Hearing Is Adjourned
OTTAWA (CP)—In an atmosphere of mutual congratulations and expressions of appreciation, the Trail smelter arbitration tribunal adjourned its Ottawa sessions late Saturday until October 12. On that date it will reconvene here for argument by counsel.

Previously the tribunal had sat in Washington, D.C., and Spokane, Wash., hearing the United States evidence on claims of sulphur dioxide fumes blowing across the boundary from Trail had caused damage totaling $2,200,000.

Russians Put Score to Death
MOSCOW (AP)—Execution of 26 convicted "spies and wreckers" in widely separated sections of Soviet Russia was disclosed Sunday.

The newspaper Pacific Ocean Star of Khabarovsk, in eastern Siberia, reported execution of 20 "wreckers" convicted of operating along an important railroad junction on orders of the Japanese Intelligence Service.

Names of those executed included Koreans, as well as Russians.

Six local officials, accused of disrupting collective farming, were executed in the Kolushino region of Azov, Black Sea province. The trial court found an "anti-Soviet terrorist band" "not only had mismanaged farms, but also prepared for revolt against the red army in case of Fascist attack."

Salt of Sea and Land

I—LONG AGO

If you could suddenly transport yourself to Africa, you might see an Ethiopian woman trudging to a village, on her way to market. Very likely she would be planning to buy one or more bars of salt at the market. People in some parts of Africa have a great liking for salt.

Salt workers near the Red Sea

On her return from market, the Ethiopian woman might meet a friend, and probably would take out a salt bar and let her friend lick it—as a sign of good will!

Records show that people have thought of salt as an important thing from early times up to the present. In some places, it has been looked upon as not only important, but holy as well.

Four thousand years ago, the Chinese worshipped a god who was supposed to rule over the supply of salt. The old Greeks and Romans offered salt in sacrifice to their gods.

In Persian folk-lore, there is a story of a young robber who looted the king's treasure house. On the way out, he hurt his foot while walking through a dark hallway. Picking up the sharp object which had hurt him, he found it was a piece of rock salt. He made certain of this by touching it with his tongue. Then he threw down the stolen goods—for he felt it would be wrong to take anything away after he had tasted the king's salt!

The old Roman name for salt was "sal," and it gave us our modern word "salary." This word at first meant "salt money." Money to buy salt was given as pay to Roman soldiers. Even today, we sometimes hear of a person who "does not earn his salt."

Dishes made to hold salt were placed on the dinner tables of the Romans. When they were open, a person could put in his fingers and take out some of the salt. The Roman salt dish was likely to be made of solid gold or silver, and sometimes was set with jewels. It often was the most prized of all the things the family owned, and was passed down from the father to his eldest son.

The desire of people for salt helped to bring about much of the trading which went on in ancient times. Caravan routes led to the salt oases of Libyan desert, and caravans took great loads from salt mines in northern India to the coast cities. At the present day, salt is one of the main things which camels carry across the Sahara desert.

Things a Child Should Be Taught

Signs Along Path to Happiness

A MOTHER WRITES: "I want my child to be happy. Is there anything that I can teach him that will help him to attain happiness?" Many things. Happiness isn't a matter of luck as so many think it is. It consists in our attitude toward life and the spirit with which we meet the vicissitudes of fate. No love, nor money, nor power can secure perpetual sunshine to a child, but we can teach him how to enjoy a rainy day and get a whale of a kick out of fighting a storm.

If I were going to teach a child how to be happy, I'd begin by teaching him to take life on the chin and to come up smiling after every knock-out. I would never let him whine or complain when things went wrong, or pity himself because he didn't have what some other lad had, or couldn't do the things richer boys did. I'd keep the spotlight turned on his own blessings until I made him contented with his lot.

I would tell him about the millionaires who were once barefooted newsboys; the sickly, crippled boys who had achieved fame and fortune in spite of their handicaps. I would teach him to look on the bright side of things instead of the dark one. It is just as easy to fix the habit of cheerfulness in a child's mind as it is one of whining melancholy.

I would teach my child that we make our own happiness and that it is an inside job that we must do alone. Nobody can help us much. Nobody can present it to us on a silver platter. We have to manufacture it for ourselves and the materials we work with are our bodies and souls.

I would teach him that the very foundation of happiness is right living, dealing fairly and squarely by all men, and controlling his appetites and his passions. I would teach him that no man could find happiness who was tormented by his conscience. Nor could any man take a gay and optimistic outlook on life who had eaten and drunk himself into dyspepsia.

I would teach him to work. No busy person is ever unhappy. I would start him in the cradle to getting pleasure out of the use of his hands and his mind by doing constructive labor—building block houses, making sand castles, etc. And I'd praise each achievement extravagantly so that he would early learn that the greatest thrill we ever get is in our sense of craftsmanship and in applause for work well done. Idleness is not only the devil's workshop, as has been said, it is the place where grouches and discontent and pessimism are made.

I should teach my child to find happiness in simple things. After all, to most of us nothing very remarkable ever happens. We never win the Calcutta Sweepstakes nor get elected President nor write a best seller nor are chosen Miss America. If we wait for our big moment to come in which to be happy, we lose out because it never arrives. But we have a whole lifetime of little moments filled with enjoyment if we know how to get the pleasure out of them.

I would teach my child, above all, that happiness is to be found in usefulness and that it is only when we give joy to others that we get it back for ourselves. Of course, no one can show another the road to happiness, but perhaps these few little signboards along the way might help my child to find it.

I should teach him how to read. In doing that I would give him a temple of refuge to which to flee when sorrows and troubles and anxieties beset him. That would save him from loneliness and boredom. No man who loves to read can ever be unhappy because he can find in books whatever he desires—companionship for his loneliness, an opiate for his worries. Teach a boy to love to read and you have given him a pleasure that never palls, but that will grow keener as the years go by, and that will be the prop and stay through sickness and health, age and infirmity.

I would try to teach him to be neither unduly elated by prosperity nor cast down by misfortune, for both pass. And if nothing is as good as we think it is going to be, neither is anything as bad as we feared. And I would teach him the joy of battle and the exultation that comes in winning out when the odds are all against you.

LEGION HEAD FLAYS NAZIS

H. W. Colmery Asks Inquiry in U.S.; Great Jam Seen in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—National commander Harry W. Colmery called for an investigation of Nazi organizations in the United States as the American Legion's biggest convention got under way Sunday with a memorial service in Madison Square Garden and a traffic blockade in Times Square. Efforts of police to open a lane for street cars and other vehicular traffic through one of the worst jammings of humanity ever witnessed in the square, finally were climaxed by the bursting of a tear gas bomb. Several hundred legionnaires, their women folk and others nearest the explosion were affected by the gas. But it opened a passageway through the milling thousands of persons congregated in the famous hub of Manhattan night life.

Colmery's attack on what he called "a brazen affront to every his formal report on his stewardship of the legion. The report, released on the eve of the opening sessions of the legion and the women's auxiliary, declared the United States "is no place for hyphenated loyalty."

"We hear," said Colmery, "that the German government claims the right and intends to organize Nazi groups in our country, to preach and propagandize Nazism here—that it will not tolerate any interference with that policy, and that its purpose . . . is to save us from Communism."

He called this a "gratuitous insult to our institutions," and demanded an inquiry to find out if citizens are "being asked to swear allegiance to Germany or any other country, or to commit themselves to serve in the army of a foreign country."

the treasurer's report, which was unanimously adopted. Games were conducted by Doris Smith and I. Bowles. Refreshments were served by Miss R. Keeler and the social committee. The meeting was closed by Rev. A. E. Whitehouse, who pronounced the benediction, and by the singing of "Abide With Me." On Monday, a member of the Victoria United Church Y.P. Union will address the society.

BELMONT
Rev. Bryce Wallace addressed the Belmont United Y.P.S. at its inaugural meeting on Friday night.

After an interesting discussion on the four-fold programme of the United Church Young People's Union, the society appointed George Bishop, Fred Smith, Ron Edmonds, Miss Mona Emery, Miss Kay Knott, Miss Audrey Morrison, George Pears and Miss Evelyn Curtis to the nominating committee.

The advisory committee consists of Rev. Bryce Wallace, F. Smith, A. H. Hundleby and W. Cook.

A rousing sing-song was led by Sergeant James. Music was supplied by R. Glass, Frank Tavre, Stan James and Walter Reid.

The next meeting will be held on Friday night, October 1, in the Belmont United Church schoolroom, to which all the young people in the district are welcome.

Battled Lake Gale For Sixteen Hours

Small Freighter Breaks Up After Crew Rescued On Lake Huron

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Her back broke and settling deeper into Lake Huron off this port with every smashing wave against her wooden sides, the package freighter Gilly lay abandoned today, her crew saved by the expert seamanship of two lake captains.

Loss of the ship, her engine and cargo was placed at $23,000.

Those rescued were: Capt. Harold Ebel; Mate Jerry Masales, Parry Sound; two wheelmen, Oscar Hayward, Prince Edward Island, and Edward Cambridge, London, Ont.; Engineer Charles Dawes, Toronto, and the cook, Jack Charrington, Sarnia.

The Gilly cleared Southampton, Ont., Friday with 3,500 eight-foot cedar posts loaded at Manitoulin Island and ran into a severe storm. She was battered about for 16 hours before being taken in tow Saturday by the freighter Superior, commanded by Capt. Dalton Hudson.

TOWLINE SNAPPED

The Superior towed the Gilly almost within the confines of Goderich Harbor when the backwash from a breakwater snapped the steel towline and carried the Gilly out into the lake.

The raging southwest wind blew her into water un navigable by the Superior. Seeing the plight of the stricken vessel, Capt. MacDonald put out in his 30-foot gasoline launch and succeeded in taking the crew to shore.

Capt. Ebel praised the fine seamanship of his colleagues whom he credited with saving his and his shipmates' lives.

"That was one swell job of wheeling," Capt. Ebel said of the three attempts to throw the towline from the Superior to the Gilly in the storm before the line was finally made fast. "It was a great job. I never saw anything like it."

The Gilly is the former Bet-T, a Nova Scotia schooner. She was taken to Quebec last spring and equipped with an oil-burning engine. It was her first season on the lakes.

LEAF CONTEST IS ARRANGED

Annual Event Will Again Send Canadians and Visitors Into Maple Woods

MONTREAL—Canada's fifth maple leaf contest has been announced here, providing for the giving of generous prizes for the most beautiful and the largest maple leaves gathered in Canada during the fall of this year. The contest, which has been organized jointly by the Canadian Travel Bureau at Ottawa, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways, has been extended to include all visitors to Canada, although entries must be collected in Canada and mailed from a Canadian post.

The contest does not close until November 1, which leaves plenty of time to gather leaves brightly tinted by autumnal frosts. Many special excursions and cheap travel rail tickets on both railway lines will enable city dwellers to visit the maple woods for a day's outing that may result in the finding of a leaf worth as high as $100. Prizes for the contest total $175 for beautiful leaves and $40 for the large leaves, the judging to be done by a group of prominent Canadian artists.

CONTEST RULES

Each leaf entered must be mounted on a separate card and entry mailed, packed flat, between two pieces of stiff cardboard, accompanied by a sheet of paper five by seven inches, on which are written the name and address of the sender and the date and place of gathering. Name of the contestant must not be written on the card on which the leaf is mounted. No entry is to contain more than three leaves, although there is no limit on the number of entries. Damaged or broken leaves are not eligible.

No entry will be returned and the judges will not enter into correspondence with any contestant. Color and shape will be the governing factors in determining the most beautiful leaf, and the decision of the judges will be final. The decision with respect to the largest leaf will, of course, be guided solely by surface area. Employees of the Canadian National Railways, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Travel Bureau are not eligible for the competition. But members of their families may submit entries.

All entries must be forwarded express prepaid or postpaid to Canada's maple leaf contest, P.O. box No. 2500, Montreal.

Following the contest winning leaves will be shown all across Canada.

MENNONITES THANK C.P.R.

Community of Coaldale Honor Sir Edward Beatty and Col. J. S. Dennis

LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—Ten years ago 20,201 Mennonite people left the shores of Europe and came to Canada. They had been subjects of the Czar of Russia, when the Soviet revolution left them stripped of their rich wheat lands in southern Russia and they had been forced across the border. Their appeal for help reached the ears of Col. J. S. Dennis, commissioner of colonization for the C.P.R., and E. W. Beatty, as he was then. As a result of the intervention of the railway company they were brought to Canada and settled on lands in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Yesterday, on the occasion of the annual visit of Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, and Col. Dennis, who accompanied him from Victoria, the Mennonite community of Coaldale held a service of thanksgiving for their deliverance from the plight into which the Russian revolution had thrown them, and illuminated addresses were presented to the two executives of the railway company, thanking them for the part they had played in bringing the Mennonite people to Canada. It was a touching ceremony, marked by the sincerity of the people of the rural community who gathered to the number of nearly 700 for the occasion.

The presentations to Sir Edward and Col. Dennis were made by J. B. Janz, leader of the Coaldale community, assisted by Bishop David Teows of Rosthern, Sask.

"May I say in all sincerity," said Col. Dennis, replying to the presentation to him, "that I appreciate the sentiments expressed in this memorial. I have been associated with the movement of Mennonite people into western Canada ever since my boyhood. The first colonies were brought to Canada because of a loan of $1,000,000 made by the Dominion

YACHTS END FINE SEASON

Te Rapunga Returns For Winter; Capt. Crowell to Give Talk to Yachtsmen

After a fine season, the fleet of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club is tying up for the winter months. The last race of the summer was sailed over Cadboro Bay waters Saturday afternoon.

The dinghies and the stars will be hauled out of water until next spring. The motor yachts and the sailing vessels will go to anchor in some snug cove along the Bay's shoreline.

The starboat Aquila, A. C. Packford, won the last event of the season Saturday afternoon, taking the special series for stars. Second was Minkata, W. T. M. Barrett, followed by Aura, I. C. Barltrop, and Ripples, Tom Hal-kett.

The crews of the dinghies, whose members have given such a fine service all summer, had lots of fun Saturday afternoon, while the stars sailed far out in the Bay. They engaged in novelty races.

TO GIVE PRIZES

The many fine cups and other trophies won during the season are now being assembled, and will be presented by Mrs. F. M. Oht, wife of the commodore at the "wind-up" dance at the clubhouse on Saturday evening, October 2. That afternoon Commodore and Mrs. Oht will be "at home" to members and their friends.

Te Rapunga, which sailed from New Zealand to Victoria, in the course of a world voyage, and which has been in Vancouver for some weeks, arrived in Cadboro Bay last night. This morning she was put on the ways there for cleaning and painting. In a few days she will come around to the inner harbor and remain alongside the Enterprise wharf for the winter months.

Capt. "Bill" Crowell and his dog "Togo," who sailed around to Victoria from Halifax in 14 months, were back in the harbor today aboard the 23-foot ketch Queen Mary, which was on exhibition all last week at the Willows.

The hardy skipper will tell his experience to members of the Yacht Club on Wednesday evening and on Thursday morning he will proceed to Vancouver. There he will spend some months.

SINKING AT DOCK

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—The 300-foot lumber schooner Cornelia, owned by the Kitsap Lumber Co. of Cosmopolis, Wash., was sinking today in shallow water beside a Wilmington dock. Carrying 1,600,000 feet of lumber from Seattle, the Cornelia arrived Saturday and last night sprang a leak.

Water poured into the engine-room ports as the schooner listed. It was announced a diver would be sent down later to locate the leak.

WINNIPEG—Lack of such amenities as hot water and electricity for his private railway car during a stop at Hazelton, B.C., brought John Jacob Astor III's proposed hunting trip in British Columbia to an abrupt end.

Government. Every cent of that loan was repaid."

This fact, he said, had had much to do in his being able to persuade President Beatty to advance some $2,400,000 to help bring the Mennonite refugees to Canada 10 years or so ago, and he was proud to be able to say the Coaldale community was repaying its part of the loan and he hoped conditions of other Mennonite colonies in other parts of the west would improve so that they, too, might be able to meet their obligations as he knew they desired to do.

The service was marked by the singing of a large choir and concluded with a passage of scripture and the National Anthem.

Coast Mission Will Share In Chest Plan

Part of Proceeds of Drive Will Go to Giving Medical Patrol Along Coast

The hospital ship John Antle, named after the recently retired superintendent of the Columbia Coast Mission, is endeavoring to establish a medical patrol of the lower section of the Columbia Coast Mission territory with its hospital base, St. Mary's Hospital, Garden Bay.

The year's work with this ship has demonstrated the necessity of giving it a wider field, including a regular patrol of territory which will embrace Lasqueti Island, the lower end of Texada Island, points as far south as Half Moon Bay, Jervis and Sechart inlets, with an extension of the medical itinerary once a month to islands such as Cortez and Read. Clinical visitations of these areas will be organized on a monthly basis and settlers requiring hospitalization will be taken to the nearest mission hospital.

The work of this ship includes, of course, religious ministrations and any social services within the power of the clergyman and doctor on board.

The approximate annual cost of running this ship is $6,500, and it is probably a fair statement to say that $3,500 might be assigned as the cost of its medical and social services. The ship is now equipped with a radio transmitting and receiving set and can be reached at any point on her patrol by radio telephone in case of emergencies. There is a splendid little dispensary on board, and a very comfortable hospital bed in the small hospital room which occupies the main deck. Minor operations can be performed on board and consultations held in the privacy of this room.

The ship will visit this area at least twice each year, in the hope that she may become familiar to all who support the work. The Columbia Coast Mission will this year make its appeal to the citizens of Victoria through the community chest.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—William James Whiteside, wireless operator at the Father Point station on the St. Lawrence River at the time of the Titanic disaster in 1912, died Saturday while visiting his parents here.

Whiteside was the first person on land to pick up the liner's SOS signal. Three years later he picked up an SOS from the liner Empress of Ireland when she sank in the St. Lawrence after a collision.
